

The Best of BCFW

And The Award Goes To...

The Generation Next Award is a platform for local up-and-coming designers to present their visions front and centre stage at BCFW. Here are this year's top three:

Polly Green
for Mia Melon.

This label features cute romper shorts in candy colours and soft neutrals that scream fun in the sun. Functional comfort is key and could take over any girl's closet with enough separates to mix it up perfectly with what you already own.

Leanne McElroy
for Elroy Apparel.

McElroy specializes in eco-friendly structured seriousness with feminine touches that are professional enough for the office. But paired up with the right accessories, these pieces are also suitable for after-work business dates.

Nicole Bridger
for Nicole Bridger.

Her ready-to-wear line has the look of L.A. cool. You can glow brighter than a Hollywood starlet by pumping up the simple styles with heels for a night on the town or you can sport some big shades and jewelry to glam it up!

Hip, happening and guilt-free. Noble vest by Nicole Bridger Design, $110 at Twigg & Hottie (twiggandhottie.com).

Spritz on the nature, babe. John Masters Organics Sea Mist (sea salt spray with lavender), $22 at The Lip Lounge (theliplounge.com).

Smell delicious sans guilt. Blood Orange and Vanilla Body Wash by John Masters Organics, $26 at The Lip Lounge.

Fab for fall. Socially conscious cowl-neck tank by Vancouver's Nicole Bridger Design, $120 at Twigg & Hottie (nicolebridger.com).

Very glam-boho, non? Handcrafted crocheted sterling silver cocktail ring, $80 at Fine Finds (1014 Mainland St.).

We're obsessed with this vintage ribbon-and-button necklace by Mandula, $140 at the Mandula shop at 882 Homer Street (mandula.com).

Even the packaging on Cargo Cosmetics' Plantlove Botanical Lipstick is earth-friendly. Evangeline shade (and others) available at BeautyMark, $20.

Organic and jaw-droppingly slick all at once. Stella McCartney C.A.R.E. Calming and Soothing Elixir, $74 at Holt Renfrew.

Snow white

Listen up, green machine. In case you missed the memo, Tinseltown has officially turned its attention toward all things eco-chic — and glam girls are taking note. From earth-friendly potions and lotions to adorable separates fashioned out of everything from bamboo and bottle caps to soybeans and crushed shrimp shells (no joke), the time is now to be an F.O.L. — that's green-speak for Friend of Leo. DiCaprio drives a Prius, has solar panels in his house and champions films such as The 11th Hour, which opens here Friday. Sign us up. Which brings us to de-lovely Kate Bosworth and her cheeky brand of stylish bravado. We're obsessed with the clean, fresh vibe of this saucy one-shoulder paired perfectly with the actress's new-found healthy glow. And the best part? She's posing for the flashcubes on a green carpet at Leo's premiere. Meet fashion's New Gen, folks.
